MRS. STILLMAN GETS $500,000 LOVE TOKEN

HUSBAND PICKS JEWELS FOR COLLAR

(Copyright, 1927, Universal Service)
New York, Jan. 20.—James A. Stillman, as a token of the dramatic reawakening of his love for his wife and their consequent reconciliation, has presented her with a magnificent "collar" necklace of pearls, rubies, sapphires and diamonds worth in excess of $500,000. Stillman himself selected many of the gems and personally dictated the assembly of the dazzling, beautiful collar which Mrs. Stillman now will wear in public.

"Why, there is no secret about it. It was very beautiful, very thoughtful of father. As to its exact value, I cannot say for I am no judge of that sort of thing. But it would not be exaggerating to say it is worth more than half a million dollars."

Pearls are the outstanding feature of the collar. They are held together in strands and interlinked with loops of diamonds. Between these are further chains of rubies and sapphires.

At present the gorgeous piece, rivaling even the glittering thrones and peckles with which Queen Marie of Rumania adorns herself, is being reconstructed in a minor particular.

South Hadley, Jan. 20 (I.N.S.)—"I believe the young people of today are better than they ever have been because they have been given freedom and have learned to stand on their own feet."

Henry Ford made this statement with a strong emphasis, although his ordinary conversational tone is so low and quiet it is difficult to follow him.

"Better than ever before," he insisted. "You know, if you cage up a lion for a long while, and then suddenly release him, it is pretty hard to answer for what he will do. He will probably be pretty wild because he is not accustomed to being free."

WOMAN OPENS FIGHT FOR $125,000,000

Providence, Jan. 20.—Claiming to be the sole surviving heir to the Jennings-Marlborough millions which she alleges were confiscated by the Duchess of Marlborough in England years ago, Mrs. Grace Swoley Tomlinson Eddy, of No. 195 Harrison street, mother of three children and wife of Cyrilford Martin Eddy, will soon begin a legal battle for her right to riches.

Eighty million dollars, the fortune stood at the time of the alleged confiscation, and at compound interest is now estimated at $125,000,000. The legal battle will be launched in the courts of Connecticut, where the record of the broken trail in a previous struggle for the fortune still remains.

Mrs. Eddy had heard of her inheritance long ago but did not have the facts nor the financial means to press her claims until now. She learned of her supposed rights through a letter written by an aunt, Mrs. Mary Tomlinson Northrup of California, but who has since died. Mrs. Eddy's father, John Tomlinson, born in England, was a nephew of William Jennings, who piled up the $80,000,000 estate Mrs. Eddy claims.

The letter which will figure prominently in the legal battle reads as follows:

"Dear Niece:

"I write to tell you that you are the only living heir to the estate in England on your grandfather's side, he being the oldest and nearest heir. You come next. Save this letter for future reference. The estate is worth of value at $80,000,000, and it runs into compound interest. It belongs to the English Jennings, comprising the whole of Aston Place. William Jennings owned it all. He died intestate with heirs in this country and in 1870 the courts decided in our favor.

"My grandfather's mother and the Duke of Marlborough's mother were sisters. They were married Jennings. No person ever said their claims, although all kinds of money would have been offered us. Not a paper was ever signed disposing of our claims."

The letter is signed "Mary Tomlinson Northrup." Mrs. Eddy says it is then Duchess of Marlborough

WHO'S SO LOPSIDED? MAN IN THE MOON!

The Man in the Moon has received another jolt! A lot of moon and funny things have been said about him from the days of Shakespeare, from the time when John Heywood declared that "the moon is made of green cheese," down to the well-known Mother Goose verse of "The cow jumped over the moon." And the latest—ah, listen!

They now say the moon is lopsided, just like a boy with a toothache, all swelled up on one side of his face.

Some of the learned astronomers are back of the claim. They say they are going to prove that the beaming old man of the night is lopsided and that the celestial body is far from being the perfect silver disk we see in the sky—when the moon is full.

An attempt will be made to prove this latest contention on the morning of January 28, at 1:34 a. m., to be exact. At that time the planet Saturn will be seen by the naked eye, quite close to the moon. As the moon moves its way across the heavens it will come close to Saturn until at 7:23 a. m. it will eclipse that planet.

An hour and 21 minutes later Saturn will come from behind the moon.

It is in the course of the eclipse and immersion, when the outline of the moon will be thrown against that of Saturn, that astronomers hope to determine definitely the shape of the planet.

The latest of this research will be the occultation, or eclipse of the planet Saturn, says Lewis J. How, astronomer at the Harvard Observatory, North Scituate. For once who would determine for themselves whether or not the Man in the Moon is lopsided, Mr. How says:

"One should begin to observe just before sunrise and after the first streaks of dawn appear. The beginning of the immersion will be visible to the naked eye, but the immersion will require a telescope or opera glass."

"Guilty"Miller's Alibi

By Jean McDonough

THE NEXT DAY COURT WAS NOT IN session, I had found a letter at home the night before asking me to be at the district attorney's office the next morning. When I arrived there I found Mr. and Mrs. Miller, Charles and the district attorney waiting for me. Charles was trying to get the district attorney to present his evidence against Miller to the grand jury. He was talking excitedly when I entered. He certainly didn't look like a man who would have committed murder.

"MR. MILLER, WHAT DID YOU TELL Mr. Alton when you visited his office?" the district attorney asked. Miller cleared his throat and began to speak in a slow, even tone. "Before the election I received word that Alton was going to make it hot for me at election time. I went to his office and warned him to keep out of my affairs. After the election I again went to his office and told him that I would never forget his interference, and that I was going to do all in my power to harm him in a business way."

"WAS THAT ALL YOU SAID AND DID in Mr. Alton's office?" the prosecutor asked. "Yes, that was all," Miller answered. The lawyer stroked his chin contemplatively for a moment and then asked sharply: "Where were you on the night of the murder?" "I was at home," Miller said. "With my wife, talking over family affairs." "Is that so, Mrs. Miller?" the district attorney asked. Mrs. Miller nodded her agreement. The district attorney thanked the Millers and excused them. He asked Charles and me to remain.

THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY TURNED to Charles and to me. "I am satisfied with Miller's alibi," he said. I smiled triumphantly at this. "It's Miller's strong political favor you're seeking—that's why you won't do anything, isn't it?" Charles demanded. The district attorney replied angrily: "Mr. Edwards, I wouldn't have thought that a man of your standing would have asked that. Would you mind leaving my office?" Even if Charles had evidence now we'd have a hard time getting a hearing. (Continued tomorrow.)

$15,000,000 IN PLAN $350,000 WOOL FOR HUB FRUIT TERMINAL

Wool, valued at $15,000,000 or more, is either on the way here or being loaded at various ports of the world for this port, according to the announcements today through the Maritime Association.

Most of the shipments will be unloaded at the Army Base during the next few months.

The shipments comprise about 16,000 bales, the largest quantity consigned here for many years. Among the vessels carrying the valuable shipments are the steamships Canadian Britisher, Canadian Southern, Canadian Challenger, Canadian Explorer, Canadian Cruiser, Easterner, Eastern Moon and Thomas P. Bell, all loading or en route from Australia and New Zealand.

The steamships West-Cornwall, Cormack, West Selma and Hopewell are bound from South American ports.

A fruit terminal auction to cost $350,000 will be constructed by the Boston & Maine R. R. It was announced today. The terminal will be located on Rutherford Avenue and will be completed about July 1. It will be the home of the fruit auction companies, who now occupy the auction terminal at Warren Bridge. The new structure will be 600 feet long, 30 feet wide, and will have all modern facilities. The project is the result of the big expansion of the Boston fruit business.

The Boston Market Terminal Company and New Haven Railroad today opened their new fruit and produce exchange in the Park street yards. The exchange occupies two brick houses, each 600 feet long.

A home is an investment in happiness and a monetary investment as well. Considered Sub. Construction 12 and 22.

BODY ON

The body of a well-dressed man, about 50 years old, was found today on the northeast shore of Thompson's Island in Dorchester Bay and recovered on orders of Medical Examiner George Burgess Magrath, the North Shore, where an examination failed to disclose the cause of death. A superintendant of the island, who reported the body was found by the superintendant of the island, who reported to the police. At the island it was believed the body had come in on the tide and was left on the beach. It was that of a man about 50 pounds in weight, of light complexion and slightly balding. The clothing consisted of light-colored underwear, light-colored shirt with blue stripes, a white linen handkerchief, and a pair of dark trousers. The body was found with black rubber boots.

order placed on the comedian's personal property and assets.

But Mrs. Chaplin failed to get any of the $10,000 temporary advance and expense money awarded her because the U. S. government insisted on settling the tax matter first.

CASH SECRETS REVEALED.

Mrs. Chaplin's attorneys by their determined efforts to block and move that might release the Chaplins millions succeeded in spreading on the court records secrets of Chaplin's finances for all the world to see.

Judge Gurnea fixed the bond of Chaplin's Hollywood studio at $1,000,000 after receiving W. L. Gillett and Herndon's affidavit.

The following bank accounts under the name of the Chaplin Studio, Inc., together with the amounts on deposit, were found in the safe:

Guaranty Trust Company, New York City, $44,433.

Federal Trust & Savings Bank, Hollywood branch, $2,538.

Commercial National Bank, Hollywood branch, $1,424.62.

The total bonded amount of the accounts was $48,400.25.

Mrs. Chaplin was looking forward to an "affirmative" ruling by the state's wife, another $1,000,000 bond was sought by the United States authorities in pending tax suits.

Chaplin's brief statement thanks the "thousands of friends and well-wishers for their thoughtful letters and loyal support," and also the women's club, "the great majority of which have shown their fair-mindedness."

"This is typical of the sanity and sympathy of American womanhood," he said.

"Throughout the United States more than shown his unbiased and friendly attitude toward me. I wish to express my heartfelt thanks for the treatment everyone has accorded me in my fight for my children."

HURRY TO WED
AFTER DIVORCE

Armed with a waiver of the five-day marriage law secured by Representative Martin Hays, Leon Parker Tuck, former Dartmouth and B. A. hockey star, and Jayneus Parker Elms, a slinky and handsome divorcee, appeared at Boston City Hall today and obtained a marriage license.

After the usual legal red tape had been cut by Assistant Registrar Jeremiah J. Leahy, the couple, accompanied by Representative Hays, left the building with the determined purpose of getting the knot tied as soon as possible.

"We desire to get married right away," was the only reason they gave.

It was learned, however, that the bride-to-be was granted a divorce six months ago in Suffolk County Court and that the decree was operative yesterday.

Tuck gave his age as 35, his residence as 145 W. 17th street, Winchester, and his occupation as that of manager.

Tuck is the son of Whitfield L. Tuck, political leader of Winchester. He was a star hockey player while at Dartmouth and later played and was captain of the B. A. team.

In 1918 he went to France in the army aviation service after attending the aviation school at Cornell University.

"Just" he repeated the word, in answer to a question, "just is music with the times taken out."

"I like some time in the music to which I dance but when the commercialized dancing and jazz they took all the time out of it."

I asked if he looked for the revival of old-fashioned dancing to make people take more of their recreation in their own homes.

"No," said Mr. Ford. "You can't expect the young people to do much with music or dancing in the home. Records for the Victrola have helped, and the radio but recreation is really more of a community affair. Get a crowd together and they have more fun."

Mr. and Mrs. Ford attended the opening of the very little Red School house to which Mary and her little lamb went. Fourteen children from the families in the neighborhood are studying there.

"We have sixteen hundred children in our school at Dearborn."

"We give the children plenty of chance to see the way things were done in the old times and to show them the fundamental principle."

HENRY FORD HARVARD GRAD
PRAISES YOUTH FOR NORSE POST

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP)—Steiner H. Bryn, Norwegian minister here for more than fifteen years, has been officially relieved of his duties, presumably because he could not agree with his government as to the wisdom of pressing Norwegian shipping claims against the United States.

F. Herman Gade, Harvard graduate and once an American citizen, but now Norwegian minister to Brazil, is considered as a likely candidate for the post. Mr. Bryn's son, Johannes Bryn, has applied for American citizenship while Mr. Gade's son, Orlund Gade, is secretary of the American legation at Oslo, capital of Norway.

CRUSHERS FROM CONCORD

TAKE MESSAGE TO SMITH

Concord, N. H., 20 (A.P.)—Gov. Bruce Murray, N. H., is sending a friendly word of greeting to Governor Alfred Smith of New York, today. The drivers of the dog team which are carrying the message from Mr. Murray to Mr. Smith, are to be congratulated.

Will Al that be doing a good even if he is a Democrat, add that I had him to keep his feet on the ground.

FRANCE DICKERING FOR CHANGES IN DEBT ACCORD

Washington, Jan. 19 (A.P.)—The French government had had some confidential correspondence with the state department relative to possible modifications of the Mellon-Brenner debt accord, it was reported here today. State Department officials declined to deny or confirm that there had been any correspondence.

The American debt funding commission expects by statute next month, and after that negotiations must be conducted through the state department.

BRITAIN WON'T give up to Chinese and other Asiatic markets without displaying some of that "building pluck." More marines, more ships are sent to remind the Chinese that British factories need outlets.

THE SENATE rejects the Lammie treaty, so this country remains cut off from official acquaintance with Turkey and that energetic dictator, Kemal Pasha. The treaty is rejected because it doesn't provide adequate protection for Christians, or any solution of the eternal Armenian question.

THE MISSOURI Legislature considers a bill to prevent teaching any doctrine of evolution that might contradict "the first and second chapters of Genesis."

A Fundamentalist clergyman, whose son is entering the ministry, announces that he is watching him closely to make sure that no Modernist ideas enter his brain. The conscientious father might get an idea from the Flathead Indians. They fasten a board against the baby's head when it is born, keep it there, and make sure that the best state flat.

THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT approves a new dance, a dignified "lancers," danced to a gallop tune. Still young Bolshevik prances the forbidden Charleston secretly. If you can't keep youth from picking up new dance steps, how will you keep it from picking up new philosophical meat? You can't do it, LUCKILY.

Mrs. D. G. REID's estate was amounting to "only" $5,000—pittifully small sum for one called "rich." His daughter will draw the income on her property until she is fifty years old, and then get the principal.

Fifty is the age at which women, if ever, learn how to keep what they have. With men, that age comes later.

TWENTY WAS the average age at which men died in the year 1850. In 1850 the average was forty. In 1876 it was forty-five, and now it is fifty-eight.

The able Dr. Mayo supplies those figures. With the right kind of living, ten years can be added to present average and we begin to live at the right age. The famous Luigi Corrado, however, grew up to die after forty, lived wisely and passed 100.

AMERICAN business men, Dr. Mayo says, "lack girth control." Much fat means shorter life. The dangerous age for women is from sixteen to eighteen. The dangerous age for men is from fifty to fifty-five. At that age he becomes foolish.

LITTLE THINGS are important and in big things. Mr. Luma, president of the Western Electric Company, tells you that telephone across the Atlantic Ocean is made possible by a small object manufactured from Rochelle salt.

GASOLINE VICTIM

Hallett F. Stevenson dying in hospital after shower of burning gasoline set his clothes on fire in garage after explosion caused by an oil stove.

"Fairly and wonderfully made," is correct.

'HUMAN TORCH' IS DYING

Turned into a human torch when an explosion of gasoline in an Everett garage today sent a shower of burning liquid over him, Hallett F. Stevenson of Hawthorne street, Everett, is believed dying at the Massachusetts General Hospital after a last resort effort through blood transfusion to save him.

A call for volunteers to give their blood for the operation brought the success yesterday. A close friend of Stevenson, Leroy Leavitt of Melrose street, Everett, was selected for the operation which was performed at the hospital.

Stevenson's wife, mother of a three-year-old baby and two other small children, were prostrate at their home when they learned of the accident.

Stevenson was employed as night manager of Bill's and Joe's Garage at No. 144 Broadway, nearly opposite the Everett police station. He is believed to have been cleaning out the office, with the use of gasoline, which exploded when the flames reached a small oil stove.

His screams attracted the attention of street policemen, who rushed to his aid. At that time Stevenson was standing in the street, and the flames were already along Broadway. Patrolmen Edward F. Connelly and William Corcoran of No. 4 School street placed Stevenson's side at the scene.

Both whipped off their coats and threw them around the flaring body, finally extinguishing the flames, but before the flaring coats had been badly burned. Stevenson was taken to the hospital in the Everett police ambulance. His name was placed on the dancer list and little hope was held out for his recovery.

SHARKEY TO MEET WINNER

He was the founder and manager of the famous National Sporting Club, of London, perhaps the greatest sporting organization of the kind in the world. He was more formally, A. F. Bettinson, but he was never heard of him mentioned by his friends as anything other than "Peky."

He was sixty-five years old when he died, but up to a few years ago he could put on the padded miltail and give a boxing lesson to most of the young professional prizefighters in the world.

Damon Runyon was a great all-around athlete in his youth.

Mr. George Tex Rickard now stands of a boxing evening in the rotunda for Madison Square Garden and smiles complacently as his clients come in doled up in what the boys call "the thirteen and odd." Rickard feels that this apparel is a reflection of the boxing uplift.

But long ago the ring at the National Sporting club in London was walled in by white shirt fronts, and a man who wasn't so arrayed felt out of place and awkward. Under the regime of "Peggy" Bettinson boxing shows became something of a social function.

matter of appearance and associated out of the ring. "Peggy" Bettinson once wrote of Carpentier in this or any other place," he declared, "has any other man in character, or in personality; and although boxing in France as it is now is, would have been about the same as in America. Georges Carpentier, it is certain that he has hastened the day when it was possible to extol the boxing and fighting qualities of his countrymen. There is here a new fighting force, the European ring. For distinctiveness, polish and as a professional fighter is entirely human and may be allowed a place in the company. Carpentier is a very good example for our young men who would make a profession in the ring."

It was in 1890 that "Peggy" Bettinson and a man named John Fleming hit upon the idea of the great boxing club that was to become a national institution in England. Fleming died the year after he founded the club and Bettinson became the manager.

By JACK CONWAY
JACK SHARKEY, conqueror of Harry Wills, today agreed to battle the winner of the Delaney-Maloney bout under the direction of Tex Rickard. Rickard talked with Manager Johnny Buckley of the long-distance telephone and asked that Sharkey's pilot hop over to New York next week to discuss terms for the proposed match.

Tex plans to pit Sharkey against the victor of the Delaney-Malone affair in his first outdoor box show at Yankee Stadium. It is expected he will win. Sharkey is either Delaney or Malone, but the case may be 25 per cent. the receipt of each. Such a little will draw close to $500,000, and would net one of the principals $125,000.

Ruckard, Buckley for Tex.

JACK CONWAY has spent his early years in the sensation, to win over Knute Hukken at the New Madison Square Garden on February 7. Tex believes Paulino will prove as great a box sensation as Luis Firpo was three years ago.

In the event of Paulino winning over Hansen, he will oppose SHIMKEY in New York on March 4.

BUCKLEY DEFENDS SYSTEM

Commissioner Claims Namin of the Judges in Advance Would Help Fixers

A CLASH between State Boxing Commissioner Eugene Buckley and Representative Peter J. Fitzgerald of Boston featured a legislative hearing today over a bill to require public announcement of judges' decisions following boxing contests.

The bill was sponsored by Fitzgerald who claimed constant criticism is one of the present "seeds of anarchy."

"Many times," Fitzgerald declared, "often wonder when they hear some decisions, if the judges had made their minds up before the bout started or were merely inefficient. Let the patrons of the sport know how easy it is to judge votes and the inefficient who are driven out."

TRIVIAL MATTER

Buckley declared that Fitzgerald was "wasting time on a trivial matter." The judges, he said, have never taken the public into the confidence. Buckley then defended the system saying that there is "a crookedness" in decisions.

"When we find out that a judge

Buckley charged that there was sinister motive behind the bill and indicated that professional gamblers would like to corrupt the judges. He told of one case where a man collected $100 for merely passing the time of day with the judges before the starting of a bout.

"They want to put the judges in the open so they can follow it up afterwards," the speaker accused.

CLAIMS FITZY DUPE.
Buckley then declared he had no intention to question the motives of the representatives but asserted that Fitzgerald, without his knowledge, was being used as a dupe.

It is common knowledge, Buckley declared, that a certain man had been working for open decisions for several years.

Boxing Commissioner Daniel W. Lane, referee John E. Sheehan, a veteran of forty years, and Captain Thomas C. Bleich, head of the detective force, opposed the bill.

Sheehan praised the commission as the "best in the country." The decisions of the judges he had come

With Representative James Twohig of South Boston dissenting, the Legislative Committee on Public Safety, following a hearing, reported "leave to withdraw" on the Fitzgerald bill calling for public announcement in boxing contests of the decision of the judges.

Winter in New England

For the Youthful—of All Ages—Quite as Enjoyable as Summer

The young mother of three sturdy children who closed her Southern California home early in January and came East to another home at Vineyard Haven was brought back by her love for her youngsters as much as by fond memories of a happy girlhood.

Brought up on the Vineyard, she felt that her young people, if forever and forever their years were to be made up of twelve months of sunshine, were going to be cheated of their birthright.

On the way East, Mrs. Woods and her children were passed by thousands of Easterners, bound West and South for the land where it is always Summer.

NOW AND AGAIN, HOWEVER, THEY WERE JOINED BY GROUPS DRAWN TO NEW ENGLAND BY THE NEW EMPHASIS WHICH IS BEING PLACED ON WINTER SPORTS.

The time was, and not so long ago, when the resort hotels of the North hoisted their shutters soon after Labor Day and did not take them down again before July.

This year, the number of New England hotels which offer "sports on money playgrounds" is above 200, the LARGEST EVER RECORDED.

Glenmont, New Hampshire, and Greenfield, in our own State, have erected steel ski-jumps which, the experts say, are among the finest on the continent.

More than thirty Winter sports centres have announced the dates of week-end carnivals; twenty other communities, having completed all other arrangements, have merely to pick their days.

Glenmont's carnival will be held on Friday and Saturday. The sled dogs will race away from Poland Spring, Me., late next week. Williams, Dartmouth, Ooly and Bates colleges, the University of Maine and New Hampshire University, will celebrate in February.

There was a time when New England was inclined to apologize for her Winters. Amongst the first to appreciate their value, in dollars and cents as well as in health and recreation, was Hiram W. Ricker.

To study Winter sports activities in Switzerland, Mr. Ricker more than a dozen years ago visited St. Moritz. In the hotels of that famous resort he found 3,200 guests!

"Since the Swiss have been at work on WINTER sports," Mr. Ricker says, "they have rebuilt their resorts, have replaced old-fashioned wooden structures with modern fire-proof structures, have rebuilt their roads and have increased their industrial life."

"What Switzerland has done New England can do."

It may be too early to say that what Switzerland has done New England is DOING, but the signs are all about us that this is New England's intention.

Elderly New Englanders probably will continue to take themselves South and Southwest with the first sign of snow; youthful Americans—of all ages—are going to appreciate more and more the joys of New England Winter.

IT MUST be tough to be twelve, or even thirty, years old and not know what a sled is, what skates are for, where one can find a toboggan slide or what to do with skis!

Give Congress a Chance

Two New Englanders Among the 14 Representatives Who Control Present Fate of Great Measure

The powerful Rules Committee of the House is to decide today whether the greatest constructive and protective project before the nation, Boulder Dam, shall be permitted to reach a roll call in this Congress.

Approved overwhelmingly by the Senate and House Irrigation Committees, endorsed with enthusiasm by President Coolidge and Secretaries Hoover, Work and Mellon, the Swing-Johnson bill can reach a vote in the House, which under the Constitution must take the initiative, only by the favor of a majority of fourteen Representatives, thirteen of whom live east of the Mississippi River.

Only thirty-six business days of this Congress will remain. The action of the Rules Committee will therefore be decisive.

For six years this great project of public benefit has been stalled.

It is now clearly entitled to its day in court.

Two years more of manipulated delay would be a brutal injustice to the 50,000 inhabitants of Imperial Valley, threatened with utter destruction of property and life by the lower Colorado's uncontrolled floods.

It would also, to no good purpose, postpone the addition of fifteen thousand new dollars to the nation's wealth, and by so much detract from the trade opportunities of the section of our country in which thirteen of the members of the Rules Committee live.

The building of Boulder Dam as now planned after years of thorough study would create this new wealth, protect these 50,000 imperiled lives and this one hundred million dollars of imperiled property, convert to smoldering fertility a great area now arid and secure to millions of people in Southern California an ample water supply without adding a penny to Federal taxation.

Why, then, should any honest statesman wish to deny it the chance to come before the entire Congress for a decision on merit?

Shall secret opposition based on desire for private control of the Colorado's waterpower continue to withhold from the representatives of the people a chance to be recorded on this constructive issue?

The fourteen men who control the answer are: Nicholas Longworth of Ohio; JOHN Q. TILSON, OF CONNECTICUT; Bertram H. Snell, of New York; Thomas S. Williams of Illinois; Theodore E. Burton, of Ohio; WALLACE H. WHITE, JR., OF MAINE; Fred S. Purnell, of Indiana; Earl C. Michener, of Michigan; Harry C. Eansley, of Pennsylvania; C. William Ramseyer, of Iowa; Edward W. Foss, of North Carolina; Frank J. Garcia, of Tennessee; William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, and John J. O'Connor, of New York.

WORK BIG SOURCE OF HAPPINESS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

ABOUT this little four-lettered word "work" cluster more foolish ideas than about any other of equal simplicity.

Some waiters take an annual vacation by playing they are millionaires and having one perfect day of bliss and idleness.

They arise somewhere around noon, bathe, drive in the park, lie around, take dinner out, and spend the evening at the theatre.

This is the sort of program they would follow all the time if they were only John D.'s or Henry Ford's.

No more work for them!

This idea expresses the sentiments of ninety-nine per cent. of the human race.

Ask anyone you know what would be the first thing he would do in case the imaginary rich uncle should really leave him the three imaginary million, and he will say, "Quit work."

Yes! The idea of both riches and heaven for most folks is: "Loading forever and ever, Amen."

It is only the rare individual who realizes that work, work, is the chief source of happiness, that it is the greatest antidote for sorrow and grief and disappointment, the producer of all honest self-respect, and the gift without which mankind would go mad.

"I envy the man who has work worth doing and who does it well," was the way Theodore Roosevelt once expressed his sentiments.

It is not the results of the work, but the work itself, the struggle for the results, that gives rest and satisfaction to living.

"He who does not strive after something with eagerness," says Bacon, "finds everything burdensome and tedious."

A HORROR in Chicago—a six-year-old child murdered after a ten-hour maltreatment by a grown man.

The man's name is Harold Crocker. He is a well-dressed young man who went about with money in his pocket and apparently enjoyed unlimited freedom, although his family and acquaintances knew that "Harold" wasn't quite right. His defense will be based on the obvious fact that he is a "moon."

Whereupon, a sketched and outraged public cried—"What's a moon?" Just another new-fangled name to help a scoundrel escape the noose or chair. Its time has come out this damnable epithet-shilling and did something with fellows like that."

It is, indeed, high time. And the first thing to do is to understand the nature of these "fellows" who are spreading such terror amongst us.

The term "moon" is comparatively new, but the condition it describes is as old as the human mind. A moon is a person with an unduly enlarged mind.

As will see and want a diamond ring, but unless he is a thief, he will not take it. Even if he is a thief, he will know that it is wrong to take it. That ability to judge and regulate his acts will have grown in him as his bones and muscles have grown. But the twenty-year-old moon will be quite apt to take the ring and there will be no difference in his mind between taking the ring and taking the ring.

At three years the moon who from a little boy, he will be a thief. But I know a fellow that I guess you'd call a moon," you say, "and he doesn't do any of these terrible things. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon. There you have the Village Moon.

Marvels and Miracles

By Garrett P. Servis.

THERE is, perhaps, too great a tendency to treat triumphs of practical science as if they were not really marvelous feats, but as the result of the application of the laws of nature.

Electric action is a thing just as common as chemical action, and the laws of nature are the same.

Electric action is a thing just as common as chemical action, and the laws of nature are the same.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

It is a maxim with me that no man was ever written out of a poem by his own hand.

—Richard Bentley.

A hole in a house is a wallpaper of a fool.

—Tupper.

There are the perfumes of herod.

—Dryden.
